The estimated costs below are based on full-time attendance required for each fall and spring semester (minimum of 12 credits for undergraduate students per semester), and do not include costs of living and studying during winter or summer break. If you plan to remain in the U.S. during the summer, you will need to ensure that you have additional funds for your living expenses.

Sources of Funding Policies

Your funding will always match the cost of attendance. For example, if your yearly cost of attendance is $52,729 USD, your funding will also be listed as $52,729 USD, even if your sponsor is promising more than that. The Department of Homeland Security regulations state that a student only has to show proof of funding for the length of a single academic year.

If you have multiple sponsors, and the funding information that you provide exceeds your total cost of attendance, we will list the higher amount promised first. For example: If your cost of attendance is $52,729 USD and you are receiving a loan for $30,000 and family funding for $25,000, we will list the $30,000 loan and then list the family funding as $22,729 so that the total matches $52,729.

Students must secure their funding before they can apply for the Form I-20. Once issued, we will not make changes to the funding section of the I-20. This includes but is not limited to, adding personal funds, increasing the amount of funding a current sponsor is promising, or adding an additional sponsor when the current sponsor's funding is sufficient.

We will only issue updated I-20s for one of the following reasons:

- Errors in the personal information section (incorrect spelling, mistakes in date of birth, etc.)
- Scholarship approved after initial I-20 has been issued

We will not update the funding section because of visa denial.

If you are receiving a student loan, we will list the amount under "other funding" as "Education Loan." We do not list student loans as personal funds. If you are planning to use your own funds or familial/sponsor funds in addition to your student loan, you must submit all of this documentation when you initially apply for the I-20.

All other sponsors will be listed by name. If a family member is sponsoring you, they will be listed by name and relation to you. We do not list this funding as "family funds." The visa officer will want to know exactly who your funding is coming from.

If you are planning to bring a dependent, you must include their information on your I-20 application, along with their passport information and any necessary funding information. We will not add dependents once the initial I-20 has been issued so please plan for your dependents accordingly.

When signing page 5 of the I-20 application, you are indicating that you understand that there are no additional funding options at Bloomfield College of Montclair State University that will become available once you arrive in the U.S. You must be able to fund your education.

If you have any questions about this policy, please email parksoy@montclair.edu.
